Convention Says Taft and Sherman

Steam Roller Flattens Big Stick-Progressives form party. Will Convene in Denver during August.

After a week of political strife the Republican Convention has decided very emphatically, via the steam roller process, that Wm. Howard Taft and James S. Sherman shall head the G. O. P. ticket doled out to the voter next November. With a somewhat battle scarred Big Stick the Colonel and his forces have formed a new party which will convene in Denver next August and will nominate Roosevelt for President.

At St. Phillip's Church

"America for Christ" will be the theme at St. Philip's Church Sunday Evening June 30. Special music by the choir.

Harding Promoted

W. S. Harding, who for the past half year has been jailer under Deputy Marshall, Schnabel, was recently appointed Deputy Marshal, of Haines, Alaska, by U. S. Marshal, H. L. Faulkner.

Baltimore Busy Democrats Threshing

Baltimore, the old convention city is the scene of the latest political strife, the Democratic Convention being in session with its factions fighting for control. With the Republican Party effectively split, Democrats expect an easy victory for their candidate.

Bugs to Form Motor Club

Local speed bugs have been invited to a meeting at the Wrangell Machine Shop this evening for the purpose of organizing a Motor Boat Club.

One More

One more speed boat was added to the list yesterday when Dr. Mathis made arrangements with Wm. Fletcher for a racing shell for his 14 h. p. Perfection motor. As the time is getting short for building boats for the 4th, this is probably the last one to be announced which is the sixth speed boat for the year and the fifth "Streak" model.

Helori Calls.

The Helori, the finest pleasure cruiser in the Northwest, with a party from Seattle who are touring Alaska called in at Wrangell Monday and Tuesday. The Helori was built after a Geary design for O. O. Denny, Seattle's traction magnate.

The Wrangell Band plays for the dance at the rink next Saturday evening.

Alaskan Committee Busy at Washington

The Alaskan Committee of the American Mining Congress, during the past month has been in frequent conference with Secretary of the Interior Fisher and the various committees having in charge the two bills which have been finally agreed upon as a compromise between the conflicting views of those who have been in consultation. The result of this compromise is embodied in Senate Bill 7,636, introduced by Senator Smoot and now under consideration by the Senate Committee on Public Lands. A very similar measure has been introduced in the House by Congressman Boeker of Missouri, which has been referred to the Committee on Territories of the House and the House Committee on Public Lands is also giving consideration to the Smoot bill with a view to substituting it for the bill introduced by Chairman Robinson of this committee. While the session is so near its close as to make doubtful any completed legislation, the radical change in the public sentiment concerning Alaskan affairs which has been brought about during the last few months is very encouraging to those who are interested in Alaskan development.

Snow Flower of Siberia.

The snow flower, so named because it blooms only in the depth of icy winters, is to be found growing on Siberian soil. When it opens it is star shaped, its petals of the same length as the leaves and half an inch in width. A Russian nobleman took a number of the seeds to St. Petersburg. They were placed in a pot of snow and frozen earth. On the coldest day of the following January the miraculous flower burst through its icy covering and displayed its beauties to the wondering spectators.

The Cross in Heraldry.

In heraldry the cross is formed by two perpendicular and two horizontal lines crossing in the center of the shield. This form is modified in various ways by additions and combinations, thus expressing many meanings. It has been said that human intelligence has never devised a system so infinite in its varieties and so endless in its application as is to be found in the science of heraldry, in which figure twenty-seven basic or fundamental crosses.

ATTITUDE TOWARDS CORPORATIONS.

Let us say to those large aggregations of capital, 'Come into our midst; build railroads, operate steamship lines, start canneries, open the mines of coal and copper and gold, give employment to as many of our people as possible, and all the legitimate fruits of your energy, your daring, your enterprise shall be yours, without let or hindrance. We do not hate you; we want you to come; we want you to succeed; we will help you to succeed, if you do not succeed. We realize that Alaska cannot be developed without the aid of capital. The poor man cannot build a railroad, nor operate a steamship line, nor open a coal mine, establish a cannery, and, yet, without these things, trade languishes, development is impossible, enterprise halts on the very threshold and there is no employment for our people; and if our people have no employment they cannot pay the butcher, the baker, the merchant; business houses fail, stagnation ensues and the pall of depression hangs over the land.

But let us, also, and at the same time, say to them: You must not interfere with the cause of justice; you must not seek to own the courts, to corrupt juries, to buy or intimidate witnesses; you must keep your hands off the hem of the garment of the white robed figure of justice, for you are no better before the law than the poorest citizen or the most insignificant of your employees, and

You must not seek to own Legislatures or Congresses or Municipal Councils; to the end that they may confer upon you special privileges and advantages not enjoyed by others or that you may influence legislation to your advantage. Your business is not the making of laws; and You must pay your just proportion of the taxes which go to the support of this Commonwealth.

Let us say to them, 'if you come to build up, develop, to act within the law, to do the right thing and the fair thing and the square thing, you are as welcome as the flowers of May, but if you come with the intention to loot, to destroy, to corrupt, to evade just obligations, the hand of every honest man will be clenched to drive you from our midst.'

Let us encourage capital to come to Alaska; let us be just and fair and even liberal to it; but let us be watchful that it be not given the power of opportunity to oppress our people.'

Anniversary of "Early Day" Wedding

Last Sunday, June 23rd being the anniversary of the wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Barnes, a few friends gathered at their home and spent a social evening with them. Some of those present attended the Barnes-Robison nuptials 24 years ago, and reminiscences of the occasion and times preceding it, were indulged in, many of the incidents and remarks being delightfully entertaining. This was the first wedding of whites in Wrangell, (then Fort Wrangell,) and Mr. Barnes was the first to wed of the four, and only, young white men in the town at that time. Three of those were present Sunday night, Robert B. Bell being the absent one.

One of the before mentioned young men, now a portly gentleman of family, related how, when at 7 p. m. it was found that a white tie for the groom could not be found in town, (the wedding was to be at 9 o'clock,) he took a Columbia River fishing boat and rowed to the old cannery at Girard Point, 14 miles there and back, to get one, he, fortunately, had in his trunk.

After this desertion from the quartette, the remaining three were seized with the contagion and within a few months all were benedicts.

After partaking of the delicate refreshments served by Mrs. Barnes, and a little later being moved to tears of laughter by a recital given by one of the youthful guests, the circle dispersed bestowing many good wishes and "happy returns."

Fireman Practice

The first special practice for the Fireman's race to be held next Thursday was indulged in Wednesday evening. No attempt at speed were made in the first practice which was to get the team familiar with the run.

"I suppose by this time you have more money than you know what to do with," said the old acquaintance. "No," replied Mr. Dusty Stax. "I haven't more than I know what to do with, but I might be a little puzzled about it now and then if I didn't get a lot of helpful advice on the subject from mother and the girls."—Washington Star.

Thanks That Differ.

"I never take a morning bath," says Sir John Lubbock Browne. "Without feeling that I ought to ask a blessing and return thanks for it as much as for my dinner." In the case of dinner, however, one's gratitude is a preamble; in the matter of the bath the feeling is that of one who sighs, shivering. "Thank goodness, that's over!"—New York Mail.

Bows and Beams.
Bedlah—Is she musical? Bedlah—Not a bit. Bedlah—But I heard somebody say she had had experience in handling a bow? Bedlah—Oh, they meant she had been engaged to be married several times.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Russian Sentry.
In 1850 the Russian emperor saw a soldier in the middle of a grass plot in the palace grounds. Why was there a daily guard, relieved at stated intervals? No one knew. Curiosity was aroused, and at last a veteran was discovered who remembered bearing his father say that the Empress Catherine—she died in 1727—once saw a snow-drop in bloom at that point unusually early and asked that a guard be stationed there to protect it. And there a sentinel remained for at least 132 years; so one knew how much longer.

The Eagle.
According to an ancient notion, the eagle renews its strength when very old. It mounts aloft until it comes near the sun. When scorched by the heat, it throws itself into the sea, whence it emerges full of renewed vigor. Some commentators have supposed that the passage in Psalm ciii, 5, "Thy youth is renewed like the eagle's," alludes to this old fable. But the more probable fact is that it refers to the strength and vigor which characterizes the eagle even in old age.—Harper's.

A Witty Pauper.
While walking through an old street in Stuttgart a man found a purse, and, thinking that it might contain something valuable, he stuck it hastily in his pocket and hurried home. He examined it then and was disgusted to find that it contained nothing except these four lines in German on a slip of paper:
When you and this purse refrain from joy,
I'll tell you why in a minute—
I only threw it away because
I hadn't a cent to put in it.

BE KIND TODAY.
If you've smiles to give, give them today. Living eyes are often hungry. Though their gaze be seemingly so calm and mayhap so proud, the smiles may be a touch of heaven for them. If they are closed in death, tomorrow your fondest smile would matter naught. If you have a helpful, hopeful, loving word to say, say it today. It may keep some heart from breaking, some soul from falling. No word or cry had break the seal tomorrow—if death whispers then—to ears that hear today.

Auction by Candle.
Sale by candle, a method of auction that was once very common through England and Scotland, still survives in the north of England.
A "judge" and his secretary take their seats at the appointed place, attended by a crier and a servant provided with a box of tiny candles, each of which will burn one minute. At a given signal a candle is lighted, and the bidding for the object offered begins. At each offer from a would be purchaser the burning candle is extinguished and a new one lighted, and the article is disposed of only when a candle burns itself out ere a fresh bid has been announced by the crier.—New York Herald.

Dickens Fond of Color.
W. P. Frith could boast of a longer acquaintance with Dickens than any of his contemporaries, barring members of the novelist's family. In 1858 he painted Dickens' portrait at John Forster's request. Concerning this portrait the artist writes: "Dickens' taste in dress was very curious. When he came to my studio he was wearing a large sky blue overcoat with bright red cuffs. I protested that I could not manage the overcoat, and Dickens with great docility agreed to abandon this favorite article of apparel, remarking in explanation of its gaudy appearance that he was very fond of color."

A Queer Experience.
An Englishwoman in the Riviera stepped on the footboard of a train, intending to enter the carriage, but found the door locked. The train started suddenly, and she recognized that she would have to travel on the footboard until the next station was reached. A man who saw her plight crept backward on the footboards, stepping from carriage to carriage with some peril, and supported her with his arm until the next station was reached, half an hour later. The woman was fined several francs for "illegally traveling outside the train." The rescuer disappeared without leaving name or address.

Furnitures in Picture Frames.
The finest and costliest frame ever made for a picture is that which incloses the "Virgin and Child" in Milan cathedral. It is made of hammered gold, with an inner molding of lapis lazuli. The corners of this valuable frame have hearts designed in large pearls and precious stones. Some idea of its value may be gained when it is stated that the frame is eight feet long and six feet wide. Its estimated worth is $125,000. One of the pictures in the Vatican at Rome is in a frame studded with jewels. The picture is a valuable one, but the frame nearly equals the value of the painting.—London Telegraph.

An Ancient Barber's Greeting.
Old time barbers had to display more variety than their successors. A work published in 1592 describes a barber's greeting to a customer: "Sir, will you have your hair cut after the Italian manner, short and round, and then fronsed with the curling iron to make it look like a half moon in a mist, or like a Spaniard, long at the ears and curled like the two ends of an old perwig, or will you be Frenchified with a love-lock down to your shoulders? The English cut is base, and gentlemen scorn it. Novelty is dignity. Speak the word, sir. My scissors are ready to execute your worship's will."—London Express.

Blind Points in Our Memory.
"I don't remember" is a frequent answer from the witness box when the sudden question is put. And it is often a question such as any man might be expected to answer offhand. It would be a very intelligent jury that would understand the man who could not remember where he lunched every day. But there is probably not a jurymen on the lists who could tell a story of his own sudden lapse of memory—when the name, the date of importance had come under the blind point of the memory, just as the eye has that blind point which, as you turn the head and watch the dot on the paper misses it and then regains it.—London Chronicle.

CONCENTRATION.
The weakest living creature by concentrating his powers on a single object can accomplish something. The strongest by dispersing of his over-many may fail to accomplish anything. The drop by continually falling bores its passage through the hardest rock. The hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous uproar and leaves no trace behind.—Calyte.
